

META SEARCH IN THE HOSPITALITY INDUSTRY

Natasa Christodoulidou, California State University, Dominguez Hills, 1000 E. Victoria Street, Carson, California 90747, 702-292-3952, nchristodoulidou@csudh.edu

Pearl Brewer, University of Nevada Las Vegas, 4505 Maryland Parkway, Las Vegas, NV 89154, 702-895-3643, pearl.brewer@unlv.edu

Daniel Connolly, University of Denver, 2044 East Evans Avenue, Denver, CO 80208, 303-871-4278, connolly@du.edu

ABSTRACT

The Internet's impact in the hospitality industry has been far-reaching for both consumers and travel suppliers alike. Travel meta search engines search simultaneously multiple sources for travel accommodations and pricing information and then link consumers with travel suppliers or online travel agents to finalize the booking process. The case study method is used to look at the potential of these travel search engines.